TOMORROW’S OUTLOOK

The GOP Leadership has announced the following schedule for Tuesday, January 27: The House will meet at 12:00 p.m. for legislative business. The House is expected to consider H.R. 351 – LNG Permitting Certainty and Transparency Act (Rep. Johnson (OH) – Energy and Commerce) (Subject to a Rule). The House is also expected to consider bills under suspension of the Rules.

The Daily Quote

“House Republicans have weathered three tough weeks to start the 114th Congress, and this week won't be any easier, as GOP leaders try to tamp down conservative opposition to a border security bill meant to be the core of the party's immigration reform plan... The controversial immigration bill comes just days after GOP leaders pulled an antiabortion bill from the House floor amid complaints from women and moderates. The party has also had to endure an earlier immigration vote that saw more than two dozen GOP defections, and a divisive reelection vote for Speaker John Boehner. Passing the McCaul [border security] bill through a House Republican Conference that has long espoused a secure-the-border-first approach to immigration reform will not be intuitively easy, either. Sen. Jeff Sessions, a leading voice in the far right on immigration issues, has been rallying opposition, and that may translate into problems with House conservatives.”
